It’s quite clear from basic statistics that if we concede there are too many people on this planet, the problem is in the third-world, not among whites. “We need to have less kids for the planet, but we need more immigration because there aren’t enough workers”. Of course, such logic only applies to white nations. The white replacement rate is below what is necessary. The population of Africa is exploding, to the point where in a few decades, there could be several billion people there (there isn’t even a billion, yet). However, that doesn’t stop the anti-white browns from coming in full force against white families. Now this family, whose Instagram is “My Baby Dolls” (adorable), has been the subject of attack before. I remember when I saw the picture of “environmental terrorism” that they were also attacked for just simple terrorism in the past. I will attach the post below I did on the subject, so you can compare the two pictures. It’s the same family.

I hope my readers who have an Instagram will go and follow this family. They seem to be from the Nordic areas, which is a hugely rare genetic type in the world. It’s a very small group of people, thanks to diversity and race mixing. But that is not the end of the story. Ben Shapiro decided to tweet that they should be executed. Now, putting aside the probability of this being disgusting satire, what other racial group would it occur to Ben to mock in such a way? In any event, the last thing to say is that the most environmentally friendly racial group is white people. If you’ve ever been the suburbs versus the third-world, you know what I mean. There is no sense of spiritual connection to the earth among non-whites, just exploitation. In that vein, the greatest thing you can do for the environment is have more white kids and drastically lower the non-white population. Non-white populations are the REAL environmental terrorists. But you all aren't ready for that discussion.

PS: Where are all those "family values" conservatives to defend THIS family? Oh they're here: they just show up to make "execute them" jokes.
